The very core of bioscience engineering is that biological systems will be altered, improved and thus engineered. Therefore, an in-depth understanding of the basics of biological systems is an absolute prerequisite, which will be provided during the "Living World"™ series and by other, more specialized biology-related courses later on in the curriculum.

Large-Scale Fermentation Systems: Hygienic Design

(Page 1) The design of large-scale fermentation systems presents numerous engineering challenges, in particular the hygienic design is addressed in this article.

Food science is the applied science devoted to the study of food. The Institute of Food Technologists defines food science as "the discipline in which the engineering, biological, and physical sciences are used to study the nature of foods, the causes of deterioration, the principles underlying food processing, and the improvement of foods for the consuming public".
